So far the Whitney two-year-olds have not amounted to much, but the season is young yet and Rogers may uncover several youngsters of championship calibre later. Benator McCarren's Blair Athol, a three-year-old colt by Ben Strome-Roseleaf, a full brother to Roseben, died yesterday from prother to Roseben, died yesterday from lockjaw. The colt while working at the Bay picked up a nail. He was soon suffering intense agony and although several vets tried to save him, he could not survive. As a two-pear-old, owned by W. M. Sheftel, Blair Athol won several good races. Thefact that the handicapper piled the weight an Ben Strong in the handicap for two-year-elds yesterday was regarded with some signifi-cance. Ben Strong is owned by Louis. A. Cella of the notorious Cella-Adler-Tilles syndicate of St. Louis, who is backing four members of the Mets in the betting ring. It is surmised that the turf authorities do not care for Cella's presence on the local tracks, and surmised that the turn authorities do not care for Cella's presence on the local tracks, and for that reason his colt, Ben Strong, was so bestily burdened in the third race yesterday that he had no chance to win, even though he made the running for nearly half a mile. The riding of O'Neill on Judge Post in this event caused a lot of harsh talk. The colt was literally backed off the boards, a $10,000 commission ally backed off the boards, a $10,000 commission was sent to the ring from the clubhouse alone. Judge Post, a sluggish horse, did not get into his stride early, but O'Neill never made a more with him until he hit the stretch. Instead of going to the whip the jockey was satisfied to use his hands and heels, the colt running practically under his own courage. With any kind of vigorous handling Judge Post would probably have won. As it was Post would probably have won. As it was, the weak ride enabled the books to win thou-sands on the result. O'Neill has fallen off in his riding this year to a remarkable degree. le lacks the old fire and dash and seems

A killing went through with Thespian, fidden by a boy named Tadlock, who simply sat still and let the old Rafallo horse make dis own pace. Manija, a filly by Gerolstein—Chimera, ran in the name of the Albemarle Stable. She was evidently in need of a race or two, as she stopped in the last sixteenth when she seemed to have the race in hand. There was plenty of backing for H. The running of the Standard Stakes, weight for age, one mile and a quarter at Gravesend for age, one mile and a quarter at Gravesend yesterday caused the tongues of the scandal mongers to wag with unusual vigor. When Ormondale won the Broadway Stakes on Ormondale won the Broadway Stakes on Saturday he defeated Whimsical, odds on favorite, after the latter had received a flagrantly bad ride from little Notter. In that race Ormondale, who was heavily backed, conceded ten pounds on the scale and fifteen pounds actual weight to Whimsical, and won in track record time for a mile and a sixteenth. In yesterda 's affair, with three starters, Ormondale and Whimsical met on even terms as to the scale, with the mare receiving the usual sex allowance of five pounds. Ormondale, with Miller up, was $13 to 20 favorite, while Whimsical, ridden this time by a competent boy, L. Williams, went up in the betting to $10, with Cairngorm closing at 16 to $5.

Miller took the rail position at the start, Miller took the rail position at the start, and Whimsical, getting into her stride readily, went up to him on the outside, Cairngorm trailing. Together Ormondale and Whimsical raced close together clear up the backstretch, around the far turn and then into the run home, where Ormondale cracked under the terrific pace and Jones moved up with Cairngorm. But Whimsical, though tired, was game to the core and won in a hard, staggering drive by half a length from Cairngorm in 2:05 4-5. Ormondale was a length behind, badly beaten. After the race a rumor got abroad that a certain bookmaker, who laid against Whimsical and bet, on Ormondale in the Broadway Stakes, reversed his policy yesterday. the track yesterday that the stewards of the meeting take up the bookmakers' sheets on the two races in question.

Halifax, a lukewarm favorite, picked up 132 pounds in the handicap for three-year-olds, about six furiongs, and breezed to the wire an easy winner by two lengths in 1:10.

John f. Muir's Comedienne, 20 to 1, was second all the way and took the place from A.

J. Joyner's Watergrass, 10 to 1, with Lotus, 7 to 2 second choice, a length and a half away. There was much crowding just after the start and several horses had no chance at all.

Sam Hildreth's Logistilla, a hot favorite at even money, made good in the second race at a mile and a furlong.

A weak ride by O'Neill burned up a fortune placed on Judge Post, 11 to 10 favorite, in the handicap for two-year-olds. Belcast, 4 to 1, got the money by a length.

Jockeys that had never ridden a winner had the mounts in the fifth race, one mile and a sixteenth. Thespian, backed from 15 down to 6, for a killing, made a runaway of this race and romped home four lengths to the good.

Affinit P. Linke's schooner Corona started the secon's racing in the big classes of racing sectoriar at the Affant is Vacht Club's research at the Affant is Vacht Club's research, and she defeated the Almina, owned by P. P. Browster, by a seconds elapsed time. These two handsome yackts sailed across the finishing line in Gravessend Bay smoothered in convex. They had sailed all the way over the twenty-sig mile course is close order, and from the houthwest Apit busy lapped, and in spite of all each scipper could do one host could not get away from the other. It was a picture that would sig the blood of a landsquan, as with spinnahers, balloons and hig maintopmast staysalfs drawing they swept down on the finishing line.

At that time there was a nice sailing breeze. Filmy white clouds acreaned the sun's rays.

At that time there was a nice salling breeze. Filmy white clouds accensed the sin's rays and made the weather conditions ideal from a spectacular standpoint. Each yacht had been specially prepared for this race, which was the first of the season. Each had new salls. Corone's are larger than those she had last year, as her spar plan has been increased. She has hollow spars, too, and many changes have been made aloft. All these under year larger's conditions stem to have been freeded. terday's conditions seem to have benefited the yacht and she certainly sails faster and points higher than site has before.

Commotiore Cornellus Vanderbiit's sloop Rethbow defeated the Yankes, owned by Harry L. Maxwell. This contest was another hard fought one. Capt. Charles Barr sailed the Rainbow, and on board were Commodore and Mrs. Vanderbilt and Newbury D. Lawton, who had gone down on the steamer North Star. Harry L. Maxwell sailed the Yankee, and he had with him bis father, J. Rogers Maxwell, who is anxious to get into the game with his new schooner Queen. C. W. Nason's schooner Andromeda, formerly the Kiwassa, defeated the Quickstep, owned by Rear Commodore E. B. Havens. The Haviland brothers' yawi Sakana won in a mixed class. A contest that attracted much attention was for the 27 footers. Stuyvesant Wainwright had taken the Cara Mis, one of the New York Yacht Club one design yachts, to meet the three Gielow designed boats, Crescent, Sue and Jigstep. The Crescent won this race, giving another trophy to J. B. O'Donohue She had a hard fight with the Jigstep all the way home, and just beat that boat out. The Cara Mia finished fourth. The conditions did not suit her at all. Light winds and a roll on not suit her at all. Light winds and a roll on the water were just what the new boats wanted, and now it will be interesting to watch what they will do when they get a fresh breeze. In the small class the Joy was beaten. The Saetta, last year's crack, won, with the Spider a this season's boat, second and the Joy third. Although the regatta was an interesting one and full of exciting incidents, it was hardly satisfactory from a racing yachtsman's point of view. The wind was fluky. It shifted several times. It was paltry, too, and for a long time the yachts seemed hardly to stem the tide. Each yacht had its share of good and had look.

The regatta committee on the tug Catherine Moran was at the starting line promptly on time. A light wind from the northwest was blowing in Gravesend Bay and the yachts pre-The 70 footers were the first to be sent off. They were to be allowed two minutes to get across the line, while for all other classes it was a flying start. The Neola was on hand without a competitor, and by mutual consent she was allowed to race against the Rainbow and Yankee and get an allowance of 12 minutes 59 rankee and get an allowance of 12 minutes 59 seconds. Harry Maxwell had the tiller on the Yankee and Capt. Barr occupied a similar position on the Rainbow. These two circled about waiting for the signal, and just as the

about waiting for the signal, and just as the starting gun sounded, at 11:10, balloon jibtopsails had been sent up ready to break out. Maxwell had berthed his yacht well and had a position on the weather quarter of the Rainbow, and in their manœuvring both were late at the line.

The Rainbow crossed at 11:12:36, and the Yankee at 11:12:40. The Neola crossed at 11:12:47. Balloons were broken out and the Yankee, which had more headway on as she went over the line, at once drew ahead. The North Star had anchored very near the line and appeared to be in the way of the racers. The Yankee was luffed to clear her bowsprit, but the Rainbow bore off and passed under her stern. Capt. Barr had seen that the wind down the bay was coming southwest and he

down the bay was coming southwest and he kept off to catch tifirst and as soon as they were clear of the North Star both ran into a soft spot and balloons were taken in and small jib topsails set in their place as the change in the wind made it a beat down the harbor. The Yankee with her jib topsail drawing stood well over toward the west bank and seemed to take a good lead, while the Rainbow kept more to the south, waiting for the new wind to strike her. She got it first and when the two yachts drew together again on opposite tacks the Rainbow was in the lead.

The two big schooners were the next to start. Capt. Holmes gained the coveted position at the start and crossed the line at 1120:33 while the Elmina was timed at 1122:21. Both at once tacked in toward Sea Gate and the Elmina getting a favoring pulf pulled across the Corona's bow and took a commanding lead so that the sharps exclaimed the race is all over. They followed the sloops down the bay and much to the surprise of many the Corona at once began to make up the time she had lost. The Quickstep and the Andromeda were started on the mixed class across the line at 1130. Then came the class Pootas. S. E. Vernon's Vivian started with these boatts as specials to the line, followed by the Crescent, Vivian, Cara Mia and Su. There was some crowdiand the line, followed by the Crescent, Vivian, Cara Mia and Su. There was some crowdiand lightship and back again over the small boats. The Joy led, followed in order by the Bipider, Saetta, Mary and Guest.

The schooners and 70 footers were to go to the Southwest Spit, then to the Bell houy off the Point of the Hook, then to the Scotland lightship and back again over the same course, twenty-six miles. The mixed class and 27 footers turned back at the bell houy off the Point of the Hook, making severence and a half miles.

and then taken in and it was a broad reach to the Southwest Spit. The wind had freshened considerably and the yachts were making fast time home. At the Southwest Spit they gybed boome to port and were timed as follows: Hainbow, 3:38:40; Yankee, 3:43:45. Corona, 3:47:50, Elmina, 3:48:10; Neola, 3:52:40. For the sloops it was a procession up the harbor, but with the two schooners it was a hard fight. When off the West Bank Capt. Dennis had a spinnaker set again on the Elmina in the hope of perhaps outmanquering the Corona or being able to outrun that yacht. If he had hoped that something might part on the leader he was disappointed, for she at once followed the example and keeping on crossed the finishing line just 9 seconds in the lead.

The old sleop Athlon led the yawis Sakana and Lotowana out to the bell buoy and finished first, but the was beaten by the Sakana by the time she had to allow. The Quicketep led the Andromeda home, but she too was beaten on corrected time.

The Jigstep led the 27 footers at the outer mark; with the Crescent second, and these two had a hot tussle home. They luffed several times and were gybed three times before reaching the finishing line, and the Crescent won, beating the Jigstep by 18 seconds in a race that will long be remembered by those who took part, in it.

George Church by clever handling succeeded in bringing the Saetta home first in class Q. The race was managed by Theodore D. Wells, Fred Vilmar and Orient C. Pinckney. The following table gives the times of the leading yachts at the turning points in the races.

Much more frills and enthusiasm preceded and accompanied the raising of the emblem which the New Yorks won last fall than attended their phyling in the game with the Cincinnatis. There were frills to their paying, but they were the kind that updid, not adorned, and the playing they did caused praise in its earlier stages and criticism in its later stages. As concerns the champions, the feetivities were followed by fretful religions, the feetivities were followed by fretful religions, and even then was an epilogue rather than an event coincident with the celebration proper. Everything else was gay and successful from the moment the parade started downtown from Union Square up to the pitching of the first ball, a stretch of time covering over five hours. Though the New Yorks are not going as fast this year as last, there is still strong faith in their ability to win another pennant; but aside from that it was the winning of two National League pennants, capped by capturing honors that are chiefest on the diamond that the public had its opportunity to show formal appreciation for. And the appreciation shown was commensurate with the feat.

Possibly being the centre of worshipful public gaze and laudatory cheering for such a sustained period was wearing and had its effect in the game to come. It so the champions had reasonable excuse, for that sort of thing is tiring as well as pleasing. However all the players were chipper when they climbed into their automobiles for the first part of the programme, the procession down Broadway.

Maloney tried to sacrifice and knocked a
